Fatter checks due in August for employees

By Ed Foley
Staff Writer

Faculty and administrative-professional staff can look forward, at minimum, to an additional $37 — not including merit increases — in their August paychecks.

The additional funds represent the 6 percent fiscal year 1985 salary increase, the allocation of which was approved by the Board of Trustees at its meeting last week.

Raises for civil service employees will also average 6 percent, and administrators who earn more than $30,000 will receive $37 per month plus merit. The average increase for the latter group is not to exceed 5 percent. Administrators earning less than $30,000 will receive raises that average 6 percent.

The FY '85 increases have been called a "holding pattern" by Chancellor Kenneth Shaw, and will do no more than keep employees' salaries roughly even with inflation. Shaw has asked for increases of 10 percent to 16 percent for FY '86.

The faculty and administrative-professional staff increases represent a pool of about $3.7 million.

Faculty and administrative-professional staff's total of 6 percent will be distributed in this way: 25 percent of the first 5.5 percent will be taken up by the $37 across the board increase, and 75 percent will go for merit. The remaining 0.5 percent will consist of faculty promotion increments and market equity adjustments, as well as administrative-professional staff adjustments necessary to bring that group within new minimum salary guidelines.

Mondale seeks peace with Hart, Jesse

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Democrats opened their 39th national convention Monday with party leaders denouncing President Reagan while Walter F. Mondale and ticketmate Geraldine Ferraro arranged a peace and unity meeting with his losing rivals for the nomination.

Mondale, with the votes for nomination on Wednesday night, arranged the session with

Sen. Gary Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson as a gesture to discuss "anything that they wish."

Mondale and Ferraro came to San Francisco earlier in the day to await their installation as the Democratic ticket. Ms. Ferraro had the lead role at two arrival rallies on the day of her 24th wedding anniversary.

Mondale had resisted a three-candidate meeting before the nomination. Bert Lance, newly installed as general campaign chairman, set up the session after he met with Hart and Jackson, and said later, "This is the time for us to begin the healing process in the Democratic party."

Former President Jimmy Carter told the convention that under Reagan the United States has "acquired a reputation for unwarranted belligerence." He said that must change and a Democratic president would make it happen.

Mondale and Ferraro met with Democratic candidates for Senate seats.

Inmate shot at Menard by guard during fracas

CHESTER (AP) — An inmate was shot to death Monday by a tower guard at Menard Correctional Center after allegedly stabbing five prisoners during a fracas in one of the prison's recreation yards, a state Department of Corrections spokesman said.

Four other inmates were injured in a separate fight in an adjacent recreation yard at Menard, said Nic Howell of the corrections department. Of the nine men stabbed in the two incidents, only one required hospitalization outside the prison, he said.

Monday's incidents marked the second report of fighting between inmates at a state prison in as many days.

Killed in the Monday shooting was Frank Woodruff, 26, of Decatur, who died at a Belleville hospital at 1:45 p.m., Howell said.

"A tower guard fired a warning shot, but Woodruff did not respond and he was shot," said Howell. Woodruff was serving a 25-year sentence after his conviction on charges of murder, home invasion and armed robbery in Macon County, he added.

Michael Lane, the state corrections chief, ordered a full investigation of the stabbings and an inquiry into the shooting, which he said appeared to be justified and "in line with departmental policy regarding the use of force," Howell added.

In the second incident, three prisoners attacked two others in a recreation yard, but the two took the knives away from the trio and stabbed them instead, Howell said. One of the two men attacked was injured, he said.

Two of the wounded were taken to Chester Memorial Hospital, where one was admitted in fair condition and the other was released after treatment. Howell refused to give the names of any of the injured.

USO claims no tie to group ex-VP called

By David Liss
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization has little or no connection with an organization in St. Louis to which $298.65 worth of long-distance phone calls was charged to the USO, according to President Andy Leighton.

The calls, which were charged to former Vice President Stephanie Jackson's long-distance authorization code during April and May, were made to the St. Louis number listed in the name of Hilary Shelton, Missouri state director of the National Organization of Black University and College Students.

The $298.65 in calls are part of $660.30 worth of long-distance charges on Jackson's code for the two-month period.

Ten calls were made to a Waukegan number listed in the name of Dorothy Jackson at 1201 Lorraine Ave., Stephanie Jackson's home address as listed in University records. The calls totaled 403.9 minutes and cost $92.88. These calls include a 75-minute call made at 8:18 p.m. costing $17, a 71-minute call made at 6:54 p.m. costing $16, and a 41-minute call made at 7:20 p.m. costing $9.33.

Jackson was reached at the Waukegan number last week but declined to comment about the phone calls. She was unavailable for comment on Monday.

Additional calls were made to Washington, D.C., New Orleans, and two other Waukegan numbers. None of the calls were recorded on the USO telephone log.

"We do not have any affiliation with NOBUCS," Leighton said. The only communication with NOBUCS since last semester, he said, was a letter written on June 7 to Shelton. The letter was written by Kevin Valentine, former USO minority affairs commissioner, requesting information concerning NOBUCS.

Jackson and Bill Fuller, acting USO city affairs commissioner, attended a United States Student Association conference in Washington, D.C., last March in which NOBUCS also took part, according to Fuller. Jackson met Hilary Shelton and his brother Craig at the conference, Fuller said.

Other than attendance at the same conference, the USO and NOBUCS had no dealings last spring, Leighton said.

The calls made to NOBUCS on Jackson's code, 28 in all, were made to Hilary Shelton's number.

Several of these calls were made after normal business

95 arrested near convention site

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police arrested 95 anti-nuclear demonstrators on felony conspiracy charges Monday for blocking traffic a half-mile from the site of the Democratic National Convention, officials said.

The protesters, part of a crowd of several thousand, were taken into custody for blocking sidewalk walks at two locations in the heart of the city's financial district — about a half-mile from the Moscone Convention Center.

No violence was reported in the protest, sponsored by the Livermore Action Group.

The protest was intended to show a link among the "Democratic Party," corporations in the area, and militarism," said Gretchen Ritter of the Livermore Action Group.

About a third of those arrested were juveniles, said officer Steve Johnson, and all those arrested would be charged with a misdemeanor, blocking a sidewalk, and a felony, conspiracy to block a sidewalk.

"I think it's an outrageous act of mass arrest," Ms. Ritter said.

"We understand that they were surrounded by the tactical squad before they did anything," she said. "The first group was not blocking the street."

"The second group started blocking the street in response" to the first group's problems.

Those arrested were identified as members of the group's War Chest Tours.

Architects picked for public health building

Fischer-Stein Associates has been contracted to design the new Jackson County health department building by the Jackson County Board of Health.

The contract with the Carbondale architectural firm was extended to 18 months from its original tentative length of one year at last Thursday's board meeting.

Fred Siebenmann, health department administrator, said the extension was needed to protect against possible time overruns, although he said the project is now on schedule.

Siebenmann said he anticipates the size of the facility to be 7,500 to 8,500 square feet and the cost to be between $450,000 to $500,000.

Final design specifications are pending a review of department needs, he said.

The site for the new facility will be a 4.25 acre tract at Jackson County Club Road and Illinois Highway 13 West. The land purchase price was $49,500.

The new location will allow the health department to consolidate offices in Carbondale and Murphysboro. Both of those offices would then be closed.

hours, including a 145.2-minute call that began at 4:46 p.m. and cost $56.63, a 37.7-minute call that began at 9:53 p.m. and cost $14.70, and a 35.1-minute call that began at 10:22 p.m. and cost $13.69.

Calls to the St. Louis number made during regular business hours include a 107.6-minute call costing $41.96, a 94-minute call costing $36.66, and an 84.7-minute call costing $33.03.

Calls made to Washington, D.C., were to two numbers. One was to the National Student Education Fund, and the other was to a non-business number.

A person who answered at the private number and who identified himself only as "Mr. Smith" said that he received no calls from Jackson and did not know her.

The calls made to the private number totaled 146.8 minutes and cost $57.24, including a call for 85.6 minutes costing $33.38.

Most of the calls to New Orleans were made to Xavier University. Jackson attended a National Association for the Advancement of Colored People conference at Xavier University in May, according to Leighton.

The unrecorded calls were first discovered when the USO received the April phone bill for $790.32, exceeding the average bill of about $265.

Shari Rhode, chief trial attorney for SIU-C, sent Jackson a letter asking her to verify the calls as being business-related, and to pay for any personal calls. The letter stated that legal action would be taken if verification was not received.

Jackson has replied that the calls were all business-related, but has not sent any verification, according to Rhode. University Legal Counsel is still waiting for documentation, she said.

Under the University system, those authorized to make long-distance calls are assigned an authorization code.

New Zealand warned against ban

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — The United States is warning New Zealand it will break defense ties if the country's new Labor government closes ports to U.S. warships for fear of opening New Zealand to nuclear attack, a high-level source said Monday.

U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz was to meet privately Tuesday with Prime Minister-elect David Lange for private talks.

Washington is deeply concerned that a threatened ban on warships by New Zealand could encourage other allied nations to follow suit.

Reagan says Soviet people captive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Portraying communist rule as a tyranny that "puts itself above God," President Reagan said on Monday that the peoples of the Soviet bloc "were taken captives by force and remain captives by force."

In a ceremony marking the observance of "Captive Nations Week," the president said that the "ugly, sinister walls" of the Soviet system "continue to deny for the millions trapped behind them the most basic yearnings of the human spirit."

Inmate says he was forced into job

PONTIAC (AP) — An inmate who prison officials dressed up like a guard to test security at the Pontiac Correctional Center said Monday he was pressured into risking his life.

"I don't think that was right that they put me in a uniform," said Larry Scott, who fooled guards and got through two gates before he was stopped in the administration building. "Someone in the guard tower could have recognized me and shot me."

Scott, 25, said he also might have been attacked by other inmates as he walked the length of the prison yard.

Ratcliffe not guilty; blood test in doubt

By Anne Flaszka
Staff Writer

A not guilty verdict was handed down in the drunk driving trial of Robert Ratcliffe, director of continuing legal education, in Jackson County Circuit Court on Friday.

Judge David Watt said that the state had not proven that regulations for blood alcohol analysis had been followed by the laboratory which analyzed Ratcliffe's blood.

More than nine hours of testimony from 20 witnesses was heard during the trial.

Ratcliffe, appearing in court with his attorney, Richard White of Murphysboro, testified Thursday that he had attended a picnic at the Touch of Nature Environmental Center on the night of the accident. Ratcliffe was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol after the University vehicle he was driving struck a house trailer near Boskydell Road and U.S. Route 51.

ON THURSDAY, Ratcliffe told the court that he had consumed four or five beers during the night.

John Spikes, chief toxicologist for the Illinois Department of Public Health in Chicago, testified on Friday that Ratcliffe would have to have had much more for his blood alcohol level to have been measured at 0.174 percent — the level the department found in its analysis on Aug. 11, 1983.

The legal blood alcohol limit in Illinois is 0.10 percent.

Under questioning by White on Thursday, Veronica Rotterman, the chemist who analyzed the blood, said she completed the analysis from memory and did not use the "cookbook" set out by the Public Health Department.

Rotterman testified that she completes about 3,500 blood alcohol tests per year at the Chicago facility.

Ratcliffe told the court that the accident occurred when the brakes on the vehicle failed, causing him to run a stop sign and travel 200 feet down a gravel driveway before striking the trailer.

HE SAID he attempted to swerve shortly before the impact.

Harry Wirth, director of Service Enterprises, told the court on Friday that he had not been informed by Ratcliffe that the brakes on the Chevrolet Cavalier failed the night of the accident.

Phil Lindberg, director of the environmental center, said Thursday that the picnic had been an end-of-year gathering to celebrate the success of the summer conference series at the center. Others in attendance, Lindberg said, were President Albert Somit and Carbondale Police Chief Ed Hogan.

Lindberg and several other University employees present at the picnic told the court Thursday that they did not believe Ratcliffe was intoxicated.

A civil suit filed against Ratcliffe by John and Linda Childers, who were sleeping in the trailer the night of the accident, is still pending in Jackson County.

Several counts charged against the University in the civil suit have been dismissed.

Housing complaint referred to state; no action yet

By Phil Milano
Staff Writer

A Carbondale resident who couldn't get local action on a housing discrimination complaint last month is now waiting for action from the Illinois Department of Human Rights.

Andrea Stephens, who filed the complaint with the Carbondale Fair Housing Board on June 12, said Monday she had sent a complaint letter to the Attorney General's Office in Springfield two weeks ago. Last week she received a copy of a letter the Attorney General's Office sent to the IDHR.

Stephens said she was concerned about not hearing from the IDHR, and that she wanted them to "come down and investigate the whole thing." She added that she would call the IDHR if she wasn't contacted soon.

The complaint claims Stephens was denied a chance to rent a trailer after the landlord, William Lipe, Route 7, Carbondale, discovered her male roommate was black.

Stephens, 23, said that during the last month she had received support from local residents, including city employees who patronize the restaurant in Carbondale where she works.

"A lot of landlords have been real supportive, too," she said. "I was surprised at that. I thought they'd all be against it."

The Fair Housing Board ruled last month that it did not have jurisdiction over the complaint because the trailer involved was outside city limits. The board agreed at that time to send a letter of referral to state and federal authorities.

Marty Rich, deputy city clerk, said Monday that the board had sent letters to the IDHR, to Attorney General Neil Hartigan and to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development Office in Chicago.

Postponement logical on bar entrance policy

THE CARBONDALE Liquor Advisory Board should be applauded for demonstrating common sense in postponing a measure proposed by Police Chief Ed Hogan to prohibit people under 21 from entering Carbondale bars.

The measure was postponed until the board could talk to the owners of the liquor establishments and hear from students at SIU-C, who make up the largest proportion of undergrads who frequent the bars.

This move seems logical. The liquor establishments have major monetary interests at stake. The ban would undoubtedly cause losses in revenue due not only to a decline in drinks sold, but also because of the dropoff in people using video games, pool tables and foosball tables at these places.

IN ADDITION, if a substantial number of people who are underage for drinking can no longer dance at these establishments, they will probably go to places where they can dance.

Those who are over 21 will likely follow their dance partners to those places, causing a further drop in customers to Carbondale bars. In short, the new ordinance could be disastrous to local bar owners. Therefore, their views should be heard before any decision is made.

Equally important would be consulting with SIU-C students on the matter. By postponing it until this fall, when all students are back in town, the board is letting those people who would not have had any input in the matter have a chance to speak out. In this way, students will not feel that the city is trying to "sneak" new ordinances in during the summer.

IF NOTHING else, the postponement was a good public relations move. The City Council has to realize that good student-city relations are essential in a town with a student population as large as Carbondale's.

Several liquor board members pointed out that the problem with underage drinkers might not be so bad if stronger measures were taken against individual bars that consistently violate city and state laws. One board member also commented that the ordinance was sure to increase half-barrel parties in the town, which could lead to the dismemberment of some residents.

Both points are valid, and they are also a good reflection of the board members' ability to be reasonable enough to look at all sides of the issue. These points are sure to be discussed this fall when the matter is brought up again.

If there is to be a stricter ordinance concerning the admittance of people under 21 into bars, let it at least be a joint effort between the city, the liquor establishments and the students. Each of these groups has a vested interest in the matter, and so none of them should be excluded in the decision-making process.

Indy's adventures unsuitable for children

I well remember my first adventure with Indy, Indiana Jones, that is. I am, I feel, on a first-name basis with him, we have been through so much together.

Our first adventure was three summers ago and I had a seven-year-old on my lap. I was ready to steady and comfort him during the assault of what I had been warned were jolting scenes in "Raiders of the Lost Ark," such as the early scene where gobs of tarantulas fall on Indy's back.

That scene, even though anticipated, was a turn-the-bones-to-jelly shocker for father. The seven-year-old sighed contentedly and said in the measured cadence of that season's sophistication: "Excellent!"

PARENTS ARE pleased to believe, against all evidence, that their children's souls are sensitive flowers — orchids, not marigolds — and that, therefore, care must be taken lest the little creatures be traumatized by exposure to this or that cultural excess.

Actually, they are more durable — perhaps "impervious" is a better word — than we think. But there are limits to what they should experience, and "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" oversteps those limits.

I have now had my second adventure with Indy, the archaeologist with the bull whip and the thirst for excitement. "Raiders" is stimulating enough, thank you, with pits of vipers, villains dined by air-

Ferraro no help to a sinking ship ...

When selecting a running mate, a presidential candidate should look at three major factors: the public's perception of the potential vice president's political ideology; the public's opinion of the person as an individual; and the person's home state or power base.

When Geraldine Ferraro is measured against these criteria, it is obvious that Walter Mondale made the wrong choice of a running mate.

Where Ferraro lives is her strongest asset. New York is one of the key states in a national election. There is no argument that Ferraro's home state is a help to Mondale, but it is no guarantee that the Democrats will carry the state.

The public's perception of her ideology will be a disadvantage, however. Ferraro's pro-ERA and abortion stances have already caused some conservative groups to tag her as too liberal. With the scale already leaning in the liberal direction with Mondale, Ferraro as No. 2 is sure to make conservative Democrats feel like they have been left hanging in mid-air.

...but may revive Democratic ticket

Geraldine Ferraro can hardly damage Walter Mondale's home campaign.

Mondale doesn't have much going for him. He's a holdover from the Carter administration, he's not attractive, he's not colorful — his policies haven't been criticized as much as his lack of personality.

A woman was the answer for Mondale's dreary campaign. Ferraro can breathe some life into the Democratic ticket. Politically, she's a blessing. She represents a minority, complements Mondale's ideological position, brings something new to presidential politics and gives Mondale some support from women, Catholics, ethnics and New York, which went to Reagan in 1980.

The Democratic Party had nothing to lose in backing a female vice presidential candidate.

When Mondale surprised most of the country by choosing a woman, he was criticized for making a "political move," choosing a running mate who is unqualified for the vice presidency and making a wild attempt at reviving a waning campaign.

Jay Schmitz
Associate
Editorial Page Editor

Conservative Democrats have a tendency to jump party when they feel their viewpoints are being ignored. This was seen most recently in 1980, when Ronald Reagan captured several Southern states.

The other factor, the public's perception of Ferraro as an individual, is another problem with the ticket. Nobody south or west of New England really knows much about Geraldine Ferraro.

People will want to know more about anyone who will be one step away from the presidency. Uninformed voters tend to rely on ideological labels if they don't know anything about a candidate. Ferraro just doesn't have the national stature required of a vice presidential nominee.

Political analysts and campaign managers have for years stressed how difficult it is to convince voters to accept female candidates. Mondale may have jumped the gun in deciding the time is right for a woman running mate.

On the other hand, Ferraro may have tied herself to a sinking ship no matter how well she campaigns. Prior to the announcement that Ferraro was going to be his running mate, polls showed Mondale running 19 percentage points behind Reagan.

This is a huge margin to make up, and a heavy burden to carry for someone as inexperienced in national campaigning as Ferraro. It could be a detriment to her career and other women politicians if she becomes identified with a campaign that loses by a large margin this November.

Sherry Chisenhall
Editorial Page Editor

V.P. choice would be someone other than a white male.

But after the choice was made, Republicans knew that Mondale had made a wise move and had given his campaign a new twist. They scoffed that Ms. Ferraro was merely a third-term congresswoman, hardly capable of being the vice president.

These allegations are attempts at minimizing the positive effects that Mondale's choice will have on the Democratic Party's bid for the presidency.

Mondale will gain support in New York and from the feminists, and he has made his dull ticket more lively. Whether an exciting ticket can win the presidency is another matter, of course. Mondale made the wisest move, nonetheless, in selecting his running mate. Ferraro brings much to the ticket, but even she has a long way to go to make up for everything Mondale lacks.

The Democrats, win or lose in November, will be remembered for contributing to the advancement of women and minorities. That's what the Democratic Party is all about.

his bare hand plucks the hearts from the chests of victims.

THE FROLICsome movie proceeds without undue expenditure of nuance, which is fine, but suddenly it becomes ugly. There is salacious cruelty in the torture scene where a fellow is roasted alive. But then, that is sort of the way it is apt to be with your basic torture scene.

The truth is that this movie, as fare for children, is unsuitable, and as a cultural symptom is depressing. It is not just another example of the inexorable tendency toward excess, like half-time shows at Super Bowls.

It is an example of the upward ratchet effect of shocking extremism in popular entertainment. This march toward the shocking is producing a generation that would yawn through the parting of the Red Sea.

We who, when children, considered Hopalong Cassidy and Randolph Scott the last words in excitement now know better, but we doubt that our children are more fortunate.

THE TWO persons responsible for "Temple of Doom," Steven Spielberg and George Lucas, are commercial geniuses. The noun is right but it is severely limited and devalued by the adjective.

Their obsession with juvenile obsessions (repulsive creatures and foods) may be evidence of their arrested development, which is their problem. But the sensory blitzkrieg they have produced to coin money is apt to stunt the imaginations of children, and that is our problem.

Movies can engage the imagination but doing so requires art. And whatever else art involves, it involves proportionality and subtlety — the ability to approach the edge of excess without falling in. This movie leaps in exuberantly, and that is why there may not be a third Indy epic.

What is left to happen to him? If the future takes such revenge for today's excess, well, excellent.

Meeting on earthquakes to be Tuesday

How to withstand an earthquake will be the topic at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at City Hall, 607 E. College St.

Sheila Steele, Carbondale's earthquake specialist, will discuss what kind of instructions teachers should give their students to prepare for a possible earthquake when schools are in session.

Business and religious leaders will consider how to best protect their employees and congregations from earthquakes. They will also examine how to cope with the aftermath of an earthquake.

The meeting will identify the potential dangers of earthquakes to homes and how to prevent potential hazards.

The earthquake session is open to the public. For more information, call Steve Piltz at 549-5302.

Support group for parents of blind to meet

The first meeting of a support group for parents of blind or visually impaired children will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Archway, 1108 W. Willow St. A potluck supper will be held at 6 p.m.

The purpose of the meeting is to determine what kind of support is necessary. David Ekin and Mary Sies, counselors at the Illinois School for the Visually Impaired, will attend the meeting to answer questions about the school.

The ISVI offers various services ranging from a full educational program to social and daily living skills training to orientation and mobility training. It also evaluates children for local school districts to aid in program planning.

Minnelli reported headed to abuse clinic in California

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Liza Minnelli headed for the Betty Ford Clinic in California on Monday, according to a newspaper columnist who quoted her as saying, "I have a problem and I'm going to deal with it."

Miss Minnelli flew to California on Friday accompanied by a physician; her sister, Lorna Luft; her secretary, Roni Agress; and a friend, Pam Lewis, the New York Daily News said Monday in a report under the byline of Liz Smith, a syndicated writer whose gossip column also appears in the Daily News.

The Betty Ford Clinic in Rancho Mirage, Calif., was founded by the former first lady after she was helped to overcome an alcohol and drug problem. Miss Minnelli was due to enter the facility Monday, the report said.

A spokeswoman at the center, who refused to give her name, said she could not comment on the report. A message left with an answering service for Miss Minnelli's publicist was not returned.

First man on moon keeps mum on Earth

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Neil Armstrong, who made the first walk on the moon 15 years ago this week, shuns the limelight and avoids interviews, saying he's too busy now with his farm and business.

"I have a policy of not granting individual interviews," said the astronaut, 53.

Armstrong raises cattle and corn on a 300-acre farm with his wife, Janet.

Alumni Services director is named

J.C. Garavalia, an administrator in the SIU Foundation, has been named director of Alumni Services at SIU-C. He will also serve as executive director of the Alumni Association.

The appointment is effective Sept. 1. Garavalia, assistant director of Alumni Services in the early 1970s, will succeed Robert Odaniell, who will retire Aug. 31.

Garavalia, 53, has been director of operations and director of deferred giving for the SIU Foundation. He has also been serving as corporation secretary for the Foundation's board of directors.

Garavalia was selected by SIU-C President Albert Somit and a three-member committee from the Alumni Association.

"We welcome J.C. Garavalia back to Alumni Services. His many years of experience will be valuable in keeping close contact with our alumni," Somit said.

Garavalia graduated from SIU-C in 1956 with a bachelor's degree in business administration. He has 17 years of experience with SIU-C, starting in 1968, when he was assistant director of personnel. He was named assistant director of alumni services in 1970, director of annual giving in 1974, and director of development and services in 1979.

"I regret leaving the Foundation, but I'm looking forward to being involved again full-time with the alumni of SIU," Garavalia said.

Odaniell, who will continue to work for two years as a special assistant for alumni programs, recommended Garavalia for the post.

"He has excellent experience in both alumni programming and development work," Odaniell said.

J.C. Garavalia

Garavalia, a Herrin native, said he wants to build up membership in the Alumni Association, increase the number of alumni chapters, and strengthen ties between alumni and the schools and colleges they were enrolled in at SIU-C.

Kick habit and collect, workers told

SPENCER, Mass. (AP) — A specialty paper company is offering its employees a little extra incentive — $30 a month — to give up their cigarettes, and 42 have opted for cleaner lungs and fatter wallets.

"Most of them wouldn't do it if it wasn't for the 30 bucks," said Bob Quintin, data processing manager of the Flexcon Co., in central Massachusetts.

Every third Thursday of the month, the company puts $30 gift certificates into the paychecks of employees who quit smoking and those who remain non-smokers. It also gives $15 certificates to 59 employees who have reduced their smoking.

Altogether, 276 people are receiving gift certificates — and reporting honestly about their smoking, Quintin said.

"I expected a whole bunch of notes saying, 'I saw this guy smoking downtown,' or, 'This guy was smoking in a bar last night.' None of that happened," he said. "When you realize there are 400 employees here, that's quite a thing."

Quintin says that since the program started April 1 workers have collected $24,000 in gift certificates that are honored by 50 merchants in this town of 10,000.

At this rate, workers will collect $96,000 by the program's end next April.

"That's a lot of money floating around in a small town like Spencer," Quintin said.

Company human resources director Joanne Quinn said it has already paid off in work efficiency. "I cannot emphasize how much time is wasted rummaging around for cigarettes while they could be working," she said.

Share your knowledge about SIU-C

By Jay Small
Staff Writer

Summer semester is on the wane. Soon, the arrival of thousands of unknowing freshmen and transfer students will mark the beginning of fall semester.

If you are no longer new to Carbondale, you must at least remember the time when you were, "Where's some decent food?" you asked, "Where can I grab a cold one?" "What courses should I take?" "What gives in this town that I'd want to be a part of?"

By now, you've probably found answers to these questions. You probably know your way around — and you certainly must know what you like. Here's your chance to divulge your knowledge for the benefit of throngs of new students soon to descend on us.

The assumption of the adjacent survey, "20 Questions About SIU-C," is that diehards who stick around for summer semester are as knowledgeable as they come about matters of living the University life. C'mon, share the wealth. Fill out the survey form and send it to the Daily Egyptian Newsroom Survey, Communications Building, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill. 62901. ## New drug may slow dental disease

BOSTON (AP) — A powerful form of a newly approved over-the-counter painkiller dramatically reduces one form of dental disease in animals, and researchers soon hope to learn if it will save people's teeth.

An experiment begins this month to see if daily doses of the drug, called ibuprofen, can slow or stop periodontal disease, the No. 1 dental problem of adulthood.

This condition erodes the bone that supports the teeth and is a major cause of tooth loss. In the United States, an estimated 94 million people have periodontal disease, and it is one of humanity's most common infections.

In the new study at the Harvard School of Dental Medicine, volunteers will take a medicine called flurbiprofen. Harvard researchers already have found that the drug can reduce bone loss around the teeth by 66 percent in dogs, which are often used to study periodontal disease.

Flurbiprofen is a more potent version of ibuprofen, which was approved in May for over-the-counter sales and was used in prescription form since 1974 to treat arthritis, pain and other problems.

Like aspirin, ibuprofen and flurbiprofen are classified as non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs, which stop the swelling and redness of bodily injury.

Doctors believe this same response to injury, when caused by some dental bacteria, eats away the bone around the teeth. So their strategy is to save the teeth by thwarting one of the body's reactions to infection.

"I am optimistic that flurbiprofen and other not-yet-tested, non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs will prove to be an effective way of slowing down bone loss around the teeth," said Dr. Ray C. Williams, who is conducting the research with Dr. Marjorie Jeffcoat.

Flurbiprofen has not been approved for routine use in the United States. It has been available in Europe for about a decade. It is among the most powerful non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs known.

The researchers plan to recruit 60 adults with advanced bone loss.

'California Suite's' serious humor is done well

By Margaret Callcott
Staff Writer

The Summer Playhouse production of Neil Simon's "California Suite" provided its audience with some "serious" humor at its Thursday night opening in McLeod Theater.

True to the Simon tradition, "California Suite" contained plenty of spirited human nature and meaningful innuendos packed in with sophisticated comedy that left the audience howling with laughter.

"California Suite" was made up of four playlets, each taking place in a room at the Beverly Hills Hotel in California. "Visitor From New York" started the play off with a woman from the east coast venturing to California to reclaim her daughter from her ex-husband.

"VISITOR FROM Philadelphia" took a turn toward the lighter side when a man who had been celebrating his nephew's Bar Mitzvah woke up and discovered a hooker in his bed, with his wife due in town any minute.

The most touching one-act, "Visitors from London," was a chapter in the lives of an actress who had come from London to accept an academy award, and her husband, with whom she has built an unusual and special relationship.

The play ended on a hilarious note, with two couples from Chicago coming to spend a relaxing summer vacation together and ending up at each other's throat.

ONCE AGAIN, the acting company members, who took turns playing the leads in the four playlets, proved their skill at portraying emotion and provoking laughter, with this play perhaps the greatest opportunity this summer to mix the two.

Chris Banholzer was amusing with her aptitude for humorous interpretation of characters. But equally important, if not more so, was the way she was able to blend self-confident "woman-of-the-world" attitudes with more vulnerable emotions to produce the complicated characters of Hannah in "Visitor from New York" and Diana in "Visitors from London."

CAL MACLEAN was excellent opposite Banholzer with his sensitive portrayals of the ex-husband in "Visitor from New York" and the husband in "Visitors from London." Although tongue-tied during some of the fast-paced dialogue, MacLean did not allow the small slips to interfere with the development of his characters. One area that could have seen some improvement were the accents, in "Visitors from London," which were close to being British most of the time, but weren't always completely convincing.

Outstanding in his first major role this summer was Eric Ewan, who submersed the audience in fits of laughter with his hilarious depiction of Marvin Michaels, a flustered man with a hooker in his bed and a wife on the way to see him. Ewan's excitable screams, contortions and heavy breathing contributed to the humor of his character.

THESE SAME attributes were also responsible for a lot of laughs in the last one-act, "Visitors from Chicago," where Ewan played a flustered tennis player instead of a flustered husband.

Lin Sagovsky played a convincing Millie Michaels in "Visitor from Philadelphia," adding a serious element to the playlet while demonstrating a subtle wit. Sagovsky was particularly entertaining in "Visitors from Chicago," where comedy became a free-for-all among all the characters.

Also notable was Marcie Cocking as Bunny, the hooker in Mr. Michaels' bed, a part she was able to play without moving a muscle or cracking a smile during the entire act, though she was thrown around quite a bit by the frantic Mr. Michaels.

ALONG WITH the excellent acting came another original and effective set, created by director Richard Shank and sceneographer Milan Palec. The set, designed to resemble a movie sound stage, included a dressling room on one side, where the audience could actually watch the characters prepare for their scenes, and a director on the other side overseeing the whole performance.

Even the techies, who usually work behind the scenes, were included in the play, wearing matching t-shirts that said "Metro Films Inc." and doing their work on the set as if they were preparing for an actual filming session instead of the next act of the play.

Overall, "California Suite" was well done and afforded a humorous look at serious issues, leaving the audience laughing and thinking at the same time.

The Service has a twitchy, energetic beat

By Joe Walter
Staff Writer

The members of The Service offered music that was graciously accepted by those who danced in front of the Shryock Auditorium steps Thursday night.

Most who were gathered near the focus of activity were content to watch.

The music was a mixture of keyboard-dominated new wave reminiscent of Elvis Costello's "Armed Forces" with a sometimes fuzzy guitar circe late 1960s and a funky bass.

A Concert Review

Add to that two sources of percussion and you have a twitchy, energetic dance beat. Add further an energetic and melodramatic vocalist, then the recipe makes an interesting event — a combination of musical talent and presence.

As with any band performance, crowd response was at first cool but gradually warmed.

Indonesian dancers coribine dance, chanting to evoke mood

By Joe Walter
Staff Writer

A Dance Review

The Jakarta Institute of the Arts' Indonesian Dance Troupe performed two compositions to a larger than expected audience Friday night in Student Center Ballroom D.

"Awan Bailau," comprised of traditional martial arts and dance movements of West Sumatra, began with a faint-sounding bamboo flute and a thin-voiced reed instrument called a pupuk and slow dance movements. The dancing sped up with the feverishly repetitive hard rhythm of small gongs, tambourines and a drum.

Clad in loose-fitting black garments ornamented with gold leaf, red sashes and head scarves, the dancers' movements alternated smoothly from quick and throbbing to slow, lugubrious and seemingly languid. The chanting of Islamic verses to Allah accompanied the movements, complimenting the mood.

The highlight of "Awan Bailau" was when the dancers held plates in their hands as if glued and gracefully moved with them, their arms lashing out and flailing up and down.

In "HHHHUUUUUU..." based on the dance traditions of North Sumatra, the dancers, wearing loose-fitting white clothes and headscarves with purple sashes at their waists, accompanied themselves with chanting, finger snapping, clapping and smacking their hands on their shoulders.

The dancers interweaved through two circular processions at one instance. Then, while they crosshatched their arms and formed two rows, they moved their heads side to side and alternated their movements up and down.

Speaking of cultural differences between the U.S. and Indonesia, Sardono Kusumo, artistic director for the Jakarta Institute, said that unlike American modern dance, the varied dance genres of Indonesia include music, drama and scenery.

Students of the institute, Kusumo said, must make auditions.

The students go through five years of formal training. Informal training like the ability to learn and grow, Kusumo said, goes on for life.

Since the institute consists of five departments — film, art, cinema, theater and dance — "students enter an interdisciplinary curriculum. They must learn to act for theater and film," Kusumo said.

The dance traditions of Indonesia are diverse, Kusumo said. Some of them were integrated in these modernized forms. One of the reasons for the diversity is the groups of Moslems, Christians, Hindus and Buddhists that inhabit the over 13,000 islands that comprise Indonesia.

of dancers, continuing to a lesser extent during the set as the number grew.

De'ant, former drummer of The Service, at intervals struck his small drum and cymbal with sweeping motions, alongside the set of drummer John Smith.

The quintet performed originals such as "A Million Words," "Frosty the Snowman" and "Lover's Leap," but also did covers such as an uneven version of Iggy Pop's "Nightclubbing," a spirited revival of Creedence Clearwater's "Up Around the Bend" and Neil Young's "Powderfinger."

Guitarist (and songwriter along with keyboardist Sope Goodman) Ricoh Koshier said that this version of The Service — after having been together for almost a year — has started to narrow its influences "that we felt were a dead end for us."

"We're getting away from British influences," Koshier said. "We're not British boys, we're American boys."

Koshier said his influences range from Led Zeppelin and Creedence Clearwater Revival to the bagpipe. But in the process of writing a song, he said he and the band don't decide on one style or another.

"We try not to be influenced," Koshier said.

Koshier said The Service recently toured the country, opening for bands like The Violent Femmes, Rain Parade, The Ramones and The Dive Kings.

Koshier said the band's goal — now that it's moderately successful — is not to be commercially successful, "but to play music we like."

"There's a real difference between what's commercial and what's accepted," he said.

Loan fund established for SIU-C employees

By Carys Edwards
Staff Writer

An emergency loan fund to ease financial hardships following the death of a parent or spouse has been established for SIU-C employees through the SIU foundation.

The loans, which are interest-free, are limited to 60 days and to the amount of the deceased's usual monthly check from the University. The fund was officially adopted in May by the SIU Foundation's board of directors, said J.C. Garavalia, director of operations for the foundation.

Its purpose is to "plug the gap" that exists in the employee benefit package at SIU-C, he said.

"There was recognition of the fact that there is a period of time before the family of the deceased received money from the University and retirement system or any of the insurance packages," he said.

The fund provides help for those families who may experience "acute" financial difficulties during this interim period, Jack Dyer, executive director of university relations, said.

He said other institutions and many large corporations have similar programs for their employees, and he thinks "it's a very good idea."

"This shows sensitivity and care that all institutions should have for their employees. I think this is a good sign that they do here," he said.

Joe Yusko, director of University Risk Management, said the loan period was limited to 60 days because this is usually required for the family to gather their funds from the University, insurance or retirement plans. He said cash is immediately available to the surviving families when they request help from the foundation. It provides sufficient money "to take care of funeral and living expenses until other sources of finance come in," he said.

President Albert Somit, one of the pioneers of the program, said most employees have sufficient money to carry them over. But, he said "we've had one or two episodes that because of a quirk in the state law when the employee dies, it may take several weeks to get finances sorted out. Rather than have the family wait while getting legal technicalities sorted out, they now have some money to use if they need it."

Garavalia said even though cases such as these are rare that "if we can simply prevent one case of hardship in this way then the foundation fund is worth it."

Renovation begins on Shryock rigging system

By Jim Ludeman
Staff Writer

People attending shows at Shryock Auditorium this year may not notice anything different about the place, but according to director Robert Cerchio, major changes are taking place in the stage rigging system.

All the lights and scenery now hang from battens, or pipes, which hang from pulleys attached to a grid structure, which is supported by trusses that are attached to the roof. The grid structure is going to be replaced.

Rig system to hold more props, lights

The reason for the improvement involves safety factors, Cerchio said.

"When the original system was put in, it wasn't designed for the weight loads of today. Even after some repair work in 1972, which was supposed to be enough, it still won't support the heavy weight loads that come in. In the past, we've had to leave a lot of equipment from road shows on the truck," he said.

THE GRID to be replaced consists of a series of 4-inch I-beams to which pulleys are attached to hang battens from. After the repair the grid will consist of a series of paired 6-inch I-beams, which will increase the weight capacity of the grid and allow more lights and scenery to be used. This will enable Shryock to meet the needs of modern road shows, Cerchio said.

In order to replace the grid, all the battens will have to be taken down, the old grid replaced and the battens rehung. The work should be done by the first show this fall, Cerchio said.

The work is part of a five-phase plan to generally improve Shryock, Cerchio said. Replacing the grid structure is the third phase.

After the grid is replaced, the next phase will change how the battens are hung from the grid. Currently the battens are underhung, which means the pulleys from which they are hung are attached to the underside of the I-beams that make up the grid, Cerchio said.

THIS SYSTEM causes a downward pull on the beams in the grid, causing them to bend a little, Cerchio said. The new system of hanging the battens will put the pulleys on top of the grid, attached to a pair of I-beams, so that the battens will be overhung, Cerchio said.

"Right now, we've got about 30 percent of the beam supporting 100 percent of the attached weight. With an overhung system, with paired beams, each beam will support 50 percent of the attached weight," Cerchio said the overhung system should be in place "within a year or so."

The work on the grid structure is being designed by two people, a structural engineer and a theatrical consultant.

The theatrical consultant is there to make sure everything is done consistent with good theatrical rigging practices, and that the structure is safe, Cerchio said.

Athletics to get $70,000 boost, Swinburne says

By Anne Flaszka
Staff Writer

The University's total budget for intercollegiate athletics for fiscal year 1985 will be increased by about $70,000 over last year, Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, told the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee on Friday.

The total budget for men's and women's intercollegiate athletics and administration will be $2,721,702.

The total FY '85 budget is $78,941 less than the FY '83 budget, and is an increase of $35,398 over the FY '82 budget.

Men's football and basketball will receive the largest funding increases, and the University may find itself underwriting part of the cost for the Shootout II basketball series in the fall.

MEN'S FOOTBALL has been budgeted a $20,000 increase to $230,000, and men's basketball funding will increase by $13,000, to $160,000.

Funding for women's athletics will be held almost stable.

Lew Hartzog, men's athletics director, told the IAAC that the school does have some funding sources for the basketball Shootout series, but said he expects the University to take some losses on the project.

"We anticipate losing some money, but I've felt we should put it on," Hartzog said.

Swinburne said, "I know individuals who will come forth if we can't find any other sponsors — we're hedging our bets."

Anheuser-Busch, who sponsored the "Busch Shootout" last year, withdrew its support after bad publicity about its sponsorship, Hartzog said.

The University may have to underwrite as much as $20,000 of the $60,000 estimated cost, Hartzog said.

GLENN STOLAR, Graduate and Professional Student Council president and representative to the IAAC, asked the IAAC to reconsider the budget to provide equal funding for the men's and the women's budgets.

Stolar said the maximum amount of student athletics fee funding going to women's athletics in the FY '85 budget is 47.7 percent.

A standing GPSC policy, Stolar said, calls for an equal amount of student athletics fees to go to the men's and women's programs.

Stolar said he will bring the matter to the GPSC executive committee before it goes before the full GPSC body.

A decision on the motion may come at the next IAAC meeting.

OTHER FUNDING increases include:

- men's gymnastics, up $2,000 to $26,500.

- men's track and cross-country, up $2,000 to $55,700.
- men's baseball, up $1,000 to $52,750.
- men's golf, up $500 to $13,000.
- women's track and cross-country, up $5,606 to $38,750.
- women's basketball up $3,400 to $46,000.
- women's softball, up $768 to $30,000.
- women's field hockey, up $626 to $7,500.

Teachers examine U.S. slavery era

By Morgan Falkner
Staff Writer

The moral, economic and social ramifications of slavery in the United States prior to the Civil War is the focus of a five-week seminar being conducted at SIU-C.

The seminar, headed by SIU-C history professor Betty Fladeland, was made possible by a $52,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Fladeland, along with 14 high school teachers from across the country, has met since June 25 in what Fladeland has described as an informal discussion group. The seminar is scheduled to end Aug. 3.

The seminar consists of an extensive reading list, selected by Fladeland, covering various viewpoints on slavery. The views of southern plantation owners, abolitionists, such as black statesman Frederick Douglass, and 20th century historians were all to be discussed. Much of the reading material is Fladeland's own work.

FLADELAND, A professor at SIU-C since 1962, is an authority on slavery in America and has written three books and a number of articles on the subject. Her third book, titled "Abolitionists and Working Class Problems in the Age of Industry," was released in June 1984.

Most of the 14 high school teachers are instructors in history or social science. But several, such as Chicago Steimetz art teacher and 1970 SIU-C graduate Clarence Fuller, attend the seminar for personal reasons.

"This is my first extensive reading in the area," Fuller said. Fuller, who said he was caught up in the radical militancy of some blacks in the late sixties, said he wanted to get to "the grass roots of racism."

FULLER SAID that as he mellowed during the following years, he began to realize a need to enlighten some of his students as to some of the misconceptions that act as a barrier between blacks and whites.

Edna Calhoun, chairwoman of the social studies department at Bennettsville High School in South Carolina, said that she experienced racism as a youth in the south, and that when she returns to South Carolina a goal of hers will be to help "prove some of the myths that exist between the races."

Calhoun explained that because she attended a segregated school most of her youth, she had little contact with white people. Ignorance of one another, Calhoun said, is a major relations problem between blacks and whites.

MOST OF the teachers selected found out about the seminar through an Endowment Society letter sent to high schools nationwide. But a few, like Fuller, found out about the opportunity to attend the seminar through chance — he happened to hear about the seminar on the radio.

Once the applications had been sent to the endowment society, a two-month elimination process narrowed the field to 15.

"These people are specially selected," Fladeland explained, "just by the fact that they were selected at all."

The seminar group, Fladeland said, has grown closer as the seminar has progressed.

"IT IS a very lively discussion. The esprit de corps has been steadily growing," Fladeland said. The group has, in fact, met on several occasions simply to get to know one another better. Fuller says that the seminar is "amazing," and that he is "in awe over some of the people in the group."

Fladeland said the seminar's purpose was to provide high school teachers with an intellectual forum with which to exchange views on an important topic. Interaction between high school and college teachers is also an important aspect of the seminar.

Darrell Dechaby, media relations officer for the society, said that $127 million was appropriated for endowment grants for fiscal year 1984. This, Dechaby explained, marks a reverse in the downward trend of federal funding set over the last few years.

Poor attention linked to insomnia, study indicates

By Carys Edwards
Staff Writer

Everyone has spent nights tossing and turning in their bed, suffering from an inability to sleep. But for the elderly, insomnia is often the norm.

This phenomenon has been researched by psychologists at SIU-C, and the latest study indicates that insomnia is related to a person's ability to focus their internal attention.

The greater their inability to focus their attention, the more likely they are to suffer from insomnia, George Shute.

graduate student in clinical psychology said.

Shute said that 26 elderly people were used as subjects in the study. Each person spent three afternoons lying on a laboratory bed for a two hour nap. Shute said. The amount of time it took each one to fall asleep and their ability to focus attention was measured.

By comparing these two factors, Shute said they found "their ability to focus attention was significantly related to the amount of time it took them to fall asleep." He said "the more difficult the mental task seemed to them, the longer it took them to fall asleep."

To measure attention ability, subjects were given mental exercises such as counting how many Es were in the chorus of "Jingle Bells."

"We had tried asking them to count letters in the 'Pledge of Allegiance,' but not enough people knew the words," Shute said.

He said they can't tell whether poor attention causes insomnia, insomnia results in poor attention or whether some third, unknown factor is responsible for causing both problems.

"We know that there are changes in the body and brain with age, so it may be that some sort of biological change, hormonal perhaps, is responsible both for the difficulty people have in focusing attention and on going to sleep," he said.

Whatever the cause, the ultimate goal is to find a solution to insomnia, he said.

In the future, behavioral treatment programs "could be developed to teach people how to focus their internal attention and see if that helps them go to sleep," he said.

If the problem is biological, then some pharmacological means could be developed, he said. The drugs now available for insomnia have detrimental side effects he said. They disrupt respiration and balancing abilities, for example, he said.

Shute worked on the study with Stephen Haynes, professor in psychology, Linda Gannon, associate professor in psychology, Steve Fitzgerald, graduate student in psychology and nine undergraduate assistants, he said.

No joke-levity can be appropriate at funerals

CHICAGO (AP) — There's no room at a funeral for graveyard humor, but two researchers say their study shows a little levity in the eulogy may be appreciated and can make mourners chuckle "in their souls."

"We're not quite prepared to advocate clowns, balloons and a parade of elephants at every funeral," said John Alfred Jones, a communications professor at the University of Illinois-Chicago.

But "we believe appropriate humor in a eulogy would really be appreciated," said James Vincent, a communications professor at the Moody Bible Institute. "It would recall the humanity of the deceased who has been called away."

Vincent and Jones said they have completed a study on humor in funerals and agree it can increase a speaker's credibility.

The researchers based their conclusions on an experiment in which 168 people 27 years old or younger listened to one of several eulogies delivered by an actor, presumably for the late President John F. Kennedy.

"We're not advocating that everyone tell a joke in funerals, but appropriate humor is appreciated by a group of mourners," Vincent said in an interview.

Jones said, however, that a speaker should be careful to choose appropriate humor — fond anecdotes about the dead person's life for instance.

Both professors stressed that any humor should not ridicule the deceased. Instead, "you make the person seem warm," Jones said.

"We don't want one-liners," Vincent said. "We don't want puns."

In one eulogy delivered to the test audience, the actor portrayed a "high-credibility" speaker — a senior senator who had advised Kennedy — and delivered a serious eulogy.

In another version, the actor portrayed the same speaker but injected "appropriate humor" — a story about how Kennedy once joked about his accidentally becoming a war hero, for instance.

INDIANS: Cellar is home

obscure minor leaguer and some cash. Guerrero is now a superstar in Los Angeles. The Indians wound up with nothing.

It seems the Cleveland management tries to get an instant winner by making impatient trades. This strategy has backfired again and again, making the Tribe instant losers.

CLEVELAND HAS had its share of bright prospects over the years, but never enough of them. In fact, their best rookies turned out to be shooting stars.

In 1955, a young fireballing pitcher named Herb Score broke into the big leagues with a splash. Score, in his first two major league seasons, won 36 games, including 20 in 1956. Then disaster struck. Score was hit in the eye by a line drive early in the 1957 season and was never the same afterward. He soon disappeared into oblivion.

Another top pitching prospect was left-handed Sam McDowell. McDowell, who began his career in 1961, was nicknamed "Sudden Sam" because his fastball approached hitters suddenly. But perpetual illness and a bout with alcoholism stunted McDowell's growth. He never reached his potential.

In 1980, outfielder Joe Charboneau was Cleveland's toast of the town. He hit 23 home runs and won the All-Rookie of the Year award. After that, it was all downhill for "Super Joe." He slumped badly in 1981 and was sent to the minors. Charboneau now toils on Pittsburgh's Class A team in Buffalo, N.Y. and his career is almost over.

Despite being blessed with some young and talented players over the years, the Indians seem to have been cursed. They are also one of the cheapest organizations in baseball. Chartering flights and giving players better allowances doesn't make up for poor baseball. Relying on a cost-cutting budget discourages players. It shows them that the organization doesn't really want to win. That gives Indians' players no hope for the future.

It is the endless losing that makes players want out of Cleveland. No matter how competitive a player is, the frustration of being 25 games out by the All-Star break is disheartening.

FORTUNATELY, help may be on the way for the beleaguered Indians. The sale of the club to David E. LeFevre, grandson of billionaire industrialist Cyrus Eaton, is expected to be completed by the end of the season. LeFevre would be wise to open up his pocketbook and inject fresh dollars into a stagnant organization.

Indian fans deserve better. Hopefully, new ownership will help transform the Indians from perennial doormats to contenders.

Rural Wisconsin is site of Bears training camp

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (AP) — Coach Mike Ditka wanted his Chicago Bears to get away from it all and concentrate on football, football, football.

So, while their comfortable training site at plush Lake Forest College is being renovated, the Bears opened camp Monday at remote University of Wisconsin-Platteville, 180 miles northwest of Chicago.

It was Ditka's idea to uproot the Bears away from friends and family to a sort of army boot-camp atmosphere.

"I just feel that training camp is just that — it's training camp," said Ditka. "I just feel you shouldn't have it where you can get in a car and go home at night."

The move is in the tradition of Papa Bear George Halas, who prepared for season openers by having his team practice at Rensselaer, Ind.

"I think this can really make the team closer," Ditka said. "That's why we're doing it."

The closest "big" city to Platteville is Dubuque, Iowa — a half-hour away.

"If the players have an evening off, instead of running home to their wives or girlfriends, we're far enough that they'll be forced to stay with their buddies, go out and have a few beers and develop some camaraderie," said General Manager Jerry Vainisi.

Ditka, 11-14 as a head coach since leaving the Dallas Cowboys' staff, is in the final year of a three-year contract and the former tight end may need a winning season to return in 1985.

"I don't think we've got to win," Ditka said. "I think we will win. I'm not even going to think about not winning."

But he concedes his club needs a fast start after getting out of the gate at 3-5 or 2-6 in six of the last seven seasons.

Stars overpower opponents en route to USFL's second title

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — There's no question that the Philadelphia Stars are the United States Football League's best team.

But just how good are they? "Come back to me in a couple of years — maybe three — and ask me," Philadelphia nose tackle Pete Kugler said after the Stars dismantled the Arizona Wranglers 23-3 to take the USFL's second title.

"Right now, I don't know how we could do against any of the teams from the NFL. I would like to think that we could hold our own, but who knows?"

Kugler, who signed with Philadelphia after jumping from the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League, was the linchpin of a defense that limited George Allen's Wranglers to 119 yards while rolling up 414 themselves in Sunday night's championship game.

"There is no doubt that this is the best team in the USFL," said Philadelphia Coach Jim Mora, who in two seasons has coached Philadelphia to a 35-6 record — 19-2 this year after three playoff victories.

So it was inevitable that Mora, who spent five years in the NFL as an assistant at Seattle and New England, would be asked at Monday's early-morning news conference to compare leagues.

"We could survive in the NFL," he said, comparing the Stars to the third-year expansion team he joined in Seattle. "We could go into that league and compete and we have a number of players who could play in the NFL. We wouldn't get crushed."

Big 10, Pac-10 to negotiate for television sales

SCHAUMBURG (AP) — The Big Ten and Pacific Ten conferences formally announced Monday they will negotiate jointly for the sale of network television rights to their football games for the 1984 season.

The announcement, released by the Big Ten office, confirmed reports last week that the two conferences would join forces after a last-ditch NCAA effort for a voluntary television package failed.

Both conferences supported that plan, proposed by the NCAA after a Supreme Court decision barred the organization from serving as the sole television negotiator for its member schools.

The announcement that the two conferences would negotiate together was made by President John W. Ryan of the Big Ten's Indiana and Chancellor Ira M. Heyman of the Pacific-10's California, who serve as chairmen of their respective conference's presidents and chancellors.

A joint committee representing the two conferences will meet with network sports executives this week in New York, they said in a release.

"We have great pride in the attractiveness of the football played in our two conferences," Ryan and Heyman said in a prepared statement. "And we are confident our games will be appealing to the television networks."

They said it was unfortunate that efforts to form a television coalition with other schools had failed.

"We spent considerable time attempting to develop a coalition television plan with members of the College Football Association. We are disappointed that in the judgment of legal counsel for both the Big Ten and Pacific-10 conferences, the coalition plan did not satisfy the requirements set forth in the recent Supreme Court decision voiding the NCAA television plan," the statement said.

"The 1984 arrangements and administrative procedures will be different than in the past, but the fans probably will be able to view more Big Ten and Pacific-10 football.

Cyclist travels the rough road

By Mike Frey
Staff Writer

Dan Casebeer is best known for riding a bicycle. But for the past six weeks, the 1982 SIUC graduate seems to have been riding a roller coaster more than a bike.

Casebeer, 25, a Carbondale native and former member of the SIUC Phoenix cycling club, competed in the U.S. Olympic cycling trials in Colorado Springs, Colo., July 6 and 7. He placed 15th in individual competition. The top two cyclists qualified for the U.S. Olympic Team.

It was amazing Casebeer was able to compete in the Olympic trials at all. He fractured a vertebra in early June, an injury which cost him valuable time in preparing for the trials.

"THE FIRST time I crashed (June 1) I was out for two days," Casebeer said. "The doctor didn't tell me my back was broken, so I started riding again. Eight days later, I crashed again."

The second cycling accident kept Casebeer out of action for a week. He began riding moderately the next week, but did not resume full workouts until the third week in June.

Brown's homer helps San Diego top Cubs, 4-0

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Brown's two-run homer and Mark Thurmond's four-hit pitching through eight innings lifted the San Diego Padres to a 4-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs on Monday.

Brown's second-inning homer, his second of the season, followed a single by Terry Kennedy off Dick Ruthven, 2-6, who was making his first start in two months after undergoing arm surgery.

Thurmond, 6-5, who received ninth-inning relief help from Rich Gossage, gave up singles to Bob Dernier in the second, Keith Moreland in the fourth and Larry Bowa in the fifth. Jody Davis blooped a double in the seventh.

Thurmond, who walked two and struck out three, walked Ryne Sandberg to open the ninth and then threw three pitches to Gary Mathews before Gossage came on.

The Padres scored again in the third after Alan Wiggins walked and stole second. Wiggins went to third on Tony Gwynn's single and scored when Gwynn was thrown out attempting to go to second.

Ruthven, whose last start was May 17, underwent surgery on his right arm.

'For a long time, cycling was in the dark ages. Now it is moving along incredibly.'

Dan Casebeer

"I lost a lot of time, and that was the big thing," Casebeer said. "I started preparing just two weeks before the trials."

To make matters worse, Casebeer's doctor wasn't especially fond of the idea of him competing in the trials.

"THE DOCTOR told me he thought I should be in the hospital and I'm thinking that it (my back) doesn't feel that bad," Casebeer said.

Despite his physical problems, Casebeer performed well at Colorado Springs. His best performance came in the 4,000-meter pursuit race. He recorded a personal best time of 4:59 in finishing 10th.

"That was three seconds faster than I had ever rode the event in," Casebeer said. "What made it tough was that I couldn't breathe much of the time because of the high altitude."

Casebeer also performed well in the grueling points race, placing 24th. The points race consisted of 120 laps, or approximately 25 miles. The riders competed in a series of sprints for points in an effort to have the highest total at the end of the race.

"THAT WAS the fastest race I've ever rode in," Casebeer said. "The average speed was 34 mph. Many racers dropped out."

Casebeer said he was impressed with the cyclists who competed at Colorado Springs. He said he thinks the United States should do well in the Los Angeles Games.

"The competition was good, clean and just incredible," Casebeer said. "I'll be very surprised if we don't win medals in the Olympics. Seven national records and one world record were set at the trials. That's amazing."

"It's too bad the Soviets won't be coming (to Los Angeles) this year. For the first time, the Americans would have presented them with some good competition."

CASEBEER SAID he believes cycling is a growing sport in the United States.

"For a long time, cycling was in the dark ages in comparison to some of the other sports," Casebeer said. "But now cycling is moving along incredibly."

Now that the Olympic trials have ended, Casebeer is preparing for the United States Cycling Federation's national championships.

Indians aren't ready to go on warpath again

IT'S LONG been said that two things people can count on in life are taxes and death. However, there is a third, often forgotten constant found near Lake Erie called the Cleveland Indians.

Baseball fans can rely on the Indians to finish close to last in the American League East each year. The Indians are a model of ineptitude.

Major league players like to refer to Cleveland as the Siberia of baseball, and with good reason. The Tribe hasn't won a pennant since 1954 and have finished as high as third only once in the last 20 years.

This season the Indians wasted no time in plunging to the cellar. The Indians are 23 games out of first place and, barring a late season miracle, they will easily finish last.

THERE ARE a number of reasons why the Indians flounder year after year.

First, they have no stability within the organization. Team President Gabe Paul and General Manager Phil Seghi shuffle players in and out of the organization as fast as they can keep them in stock. While teams like Detroit and Toronto have risen to the top two positions in the AL East with shrewd trades and a good farm system, the Indian hierarchy wears the dunce cap every year with their panicky maneuvers.

In 1982, the Indians had a capable starting staff of Bert Blyleven, Rick Sutcliffe, Ed Whitson and Len Barker. Now, only Blyleven remains. The rest of them were traded for immortals like Juan Eichelberger and Rick Behenna.

BRETT BUTLER and Brook Jacoby, acquired from Atlanta in the Len Barker trade, are young players with some promise, but were hardly worth giving up a good pitching arm for. Ditto in the Rick Sutcliffe deal with the Cubs.

Undoubtedly, the biggest blunder by the Cleveland management was trading Pedro Guerrero to the Dodgers for an
